Salem, MA, February 25, 2010 – Louise Michaud Photographer (<http://www.louisemichaud.com/>), one of the best-known wedding photographers on the North Shore of Boston, is proud to announce the opening of her new company: Louise Michaud Photographer. Louise Michaud, formerly Louise Skerry, co-founded Derby Studios, which used to be located in Salem, MA. Louise Michaud Photographer now occupies the previous Derby Studios location.

In this new business venture, Louise Michaud is continuing to offer her award-winning wedding photography and portraiture photography services, as well as expanding to include multimedia services, and various digital photography workshops geared towards semi-professional and professional photographers.

According to Louise Michaud, this expanded service offering is simply a way for her to meet the needs of her clientele. “There will always be a market for professional photographers like me, who are able to capture life’s defining moments, and that is where my twenty plus years as a professional wedding and portraiture photographer is highly sought after. The multimedia services is simply another medium—using the latest technology—to showcase an important event.” She goes on to state, that, “And, with the growing digital camera market, the demand for photography workshops has grown tremendously, so I am now offering digital photography classes here in the Salem area. I enjoy sharing my photography expertise in the classroom, so this is a natural segue for me.”
